REPORT NO.

1. The Anshan Industrial Technical School (鞍山工業專門學校), established around November 1949 at the steel center of Anshan, is now being rapidly expanded. Its purpose is to supply technicians for the steel industry of China, and its curriculum is similar to that of a Russian university, where the student specializes in only one subject after completing a period of general groundwork.
2. One week of political indoctrination is required of all new students before they begin their regular classes. This political indoctrination is apparently stimulating to the students in their subsequent studies.
